Jeng, Dhir Qualify for World Youth Championships

The USBF Junior trials took place in December in Atlanta. The event selected teams to represent the US at the World Youth Championships this August in Suzhou, China. Two District 7 players, who happen to be from Atlanta and are cur-

Jeng's team qualified for USA1 in the under 21 age group by taking 3rd in the round robin stage, then winning a close semifinal match against Stephani

(121-116) and a comfortable final against Xu (187-113). This hand from the semifinal showcases inventive declarer play by Jeng, who conjured a trick with QT4 opposite 5 by creating a powerful illusion for the defense. Against Jeng's doubled 4♥ contract South lead a low ♦ to dummy's ace. Jeng played the ♣T off dummy, North naturally covering with the King. Jeng won the low ♠ return in hand with the King, ruffed a ♦ to dummy and played the ♣4, creating the illusion of ♣J5 in the East hand! North rose with the ♣A, ruffed, and the hand was over, Jeng eventually discarding his losing ♠ on the established ♣Q to take 11 tricks.

Dhir's team finished 5th in the round robin stage, which required them to win a three-way match followed by 3 straight head-to-head matches for the USA2 Under 26 title. Dhir won both matches in the three-way, then defeated Berk (151-100), Kompa (150-112) and Wei (154-147) to win the title.

The final ended in dramatic fashion, with Wei leading by 7 IMPs coming into the final board. East-West for Dhir stopped in the cold 6NT, but Wei climbed all the way to $7 \spadesuit$. Declarer (West) won the $\spadesuit 2$ lead and played 11 winners: $6 \spadesuit$, $3 \clubsuit$, and then $2 \heartsuit$, coming down to $\spadesuit 3 \heartsuit 9$ in his hand and $\spadesuit AQ$ in the dummy. North discarded a \heartsuit on the run of the diamonds, giving declarer a complete count of the hand when North later showed out in hearts: South had a ♠ and the ♥T left and North had 2♠.

We can see that a ♠ finesse takes the last 2 tricks, but declarer (perhaps feeling he needed a swing result or just going for the more glamourous line or perhaps there was some table feel that indicated South was being squeezed) played for South to have been squeezed in the major suits, therefore forced to bare the ♠K to keep his boss heart, played a ♠ to the Ace. Note that the spade finesse is the clear percentage play because when North discards a heart, at trick 11, it is known that North started with 4 spades to south's 2. When the King did not drop, declarer was down 1 for 14 IMPs to the Dhir team. The final score: 154-147. Dhir was ecstatic at the result: "I still have PTSD when I think that we're going to China!"

The qualification is the third for both players. Jeng previously represented the US in 2010 and 2012. Jeng's other accomplishments include making Life Master at age 9 and being elected the 2017 ACBL King of Bridge. A lesser known story is that during these early years, Jeng called the ACBL to return masterpoints won with another partner to keep the same masterpoint total as his brother Andrew!

Dhir previously represented the US in 2012 (his "first year in the big leagues") and in 2014. Dhir also plays sometimes with professional clients. Both players are products of the Atlanta Junior Bridge Program, Jeng mentored by Patty Tucker and Dhir by Carolyn Eckert ("I owe my life to her!").

For China, both teams added a sixth player as well as additional USBF mentors.

The Jeng team (mentored by Sylvia Shi) added player Stella Wan and partner-ship coach Daniel Korbel for the Jeng-Youngquist partnership.

The Dhir team (mentored by David Caprera) added player Yinchen Yin and partnership coach Ralph Katz for the Dhir-Zhu partnership.

Both teams' next stop is the World Youth Bridge Team Championships, August 8 -18, 2018, which will be broadcast live on bridgebase.com. Bring home the gold, guys!
